Wireless Boat Security System

We've certainly all read about the problems: break-ins on Lake Union, sinking by rodents on Portage Bay, sinkings by vandals in Tacoma, boats stolen out of the driveway in California, marina fires, power shut-off, etc. etc. If you're a boat owner, any one of these has probably been a concern at one time or another. Finally, there's a simple, technically elegant solution that addresses any and all saging or email, which will instantaneously alert you if there's a problem. Even if the thief moves the boat, your chances of recovery are far greater since you are able to track the boat's movements via satellite and pinpoint its location in real time through a web interface accessible through any computer. Best of all, it'll be next to impossible for the thief to find and disable the GPS antenna or the communication systems. SilverTip has done a very clever job of designing and camouflaging those systems.

The reason the ESP 3000 works so well is that it has been specifically designed for the marine environment. The ESP 3000 combines two-way communication capability available through GSM/GPRS technologies with web-based functionality, advanced sensors, and GPS satellite based geo-fencing (a perimeter-based triggered system) for a simple to use and highly effective marine alarm system.

of these potentially catastrophic disasters.

The SilverTip ESP 3000 Marine Security System is truly a total security solution. It doesn't matter if your pride and joy is parked in front of the house, at the marina or being moved from Vancouver to Cabo. If you have a phone or a computer you now have the capability of monitoring your vessel no matter where it is or you are. The ESP 3000 uses real-time, two-way communication that allows you to monitor up to three doors and windows, bilge water level, battery voltage levels, on board temperature, and position tracking that can send alarm messages via telephone, text mes-
